Art Unit: 3753

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 2-3, 5-11, 13, 15, 17-20, 22-24, and 26-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Satoh et al. Satoh shows two valves in a single housing. The upper valve includes a first subchamber 62 (connected to the fuel tank) that has a horizontal component (formed in part by a first section (floor) of the valve housing) and a vertical tube ending in an aperture sealed by diaphragm 74. When the valve is closed, the first chamber is separated from the second chamber which leads by passageway 70 to a fuel vapor canister 34. The third subchamber is a spring chamber 76 that is vented through orifice 80 to the outside. This orifice is seen as a restrictor because it has a much smaller cross section area than the chamber vented. The diaphragm includes a central portion backed by a flat plate. Regarding claim 11, it would be expected that a diaphragm would be made of material impermeable to the fluids in its intended environment. With respect to claims 17 and 22, either valve (upper or lower) meets the claim, and with respect to claims 18 and 23-24, the lower valve meets the claim. The method claims are seen as performed by Satoh. As stated earlier, the orifice 80 is seen as inherently providing restriction and therefore damping.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Satoh et al. It is notoriously well known to provide some sort of filter between the outside and any chamber where cleanliness is important, particularly in an automotive environment. It would have been obvious to provide the Satoh orifice with a filter to keep dirt out of the valve.

Claim 25 is allowed over the prior art of record.

Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. As discussed on the telephone with Mr. Anchell on or about 27 August 2003, the examiner previously failed to appreciate the fact that the UPPER (pilot) valve of Satoh was more relevant than the lower valve previously applied. That is why this action is non-final.
